Senate nears vote

Tax cut measure faces major test

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's economic stimulus tax bill faces a major test as the Senate approaches a vote on a Republican proposal for across-the-board tax cuts.

The GOP plan for the permanent tax cuts appeared to be gaining some support following Carter's withdrawal of his earlier proposal for one-time $50 tax rebates to most Americans to give the economy a quick jolt.

The vote was scheduled today. Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, said some permanent tax reduction appears to be the only available alternative.

His committee gave a cold reception Tuesday to three top administration officials who argued against cutting the tax rates.

The GOP proposal calls for cutting tax rates by 5 to 14 per cent on the first $20,000 of taxable income. It would cost $7.9 billion a year in lost revenues.

The stimulus bill also contains permanent changes in the standard deduction that would save $6 billion a year for 47 million taxpayers who earn less than $20,000 and do not itemize.

Carter favors changing the standard deduction, but has said he would veto any additional tax cut.

The GOP plan would aid all taxpayers, but 90 per cent of the benefits would go to those earning $30,000 a year or less.

A family of four making $10,000 would save $205 a year from the standard deduction change and $58 from the permanent tax cut. If that family makes $20,000, it would get nothing from the standard deduction change but $156 from the rate reduction. At the $30,000 level, the family would save $220 from the rate cut.

Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal, Budget Director Bert Lance and presidential economic adviser Charles Schultz told Muskie's committee that permanent tax cuts should await Carter's promised overhaul of the tax code.

Putting cuts in effect now, Schultz said, would jeopardize administration economic plans, especially the effort to balance the budget by 1981.

The administration's efforts to hold the line were complicated by an earlier Senate action. After going along with Carter's recommendation to delete the $50 rebates and other payments, the Senate voted to leave in the tax bill $900 million worth of business incentives.

Carter had recommended also dropping these. The version before the Senate gives businesses a choice between tax credits for investment and for increasing employment.

Before Carter announced his change of policy April 14, the House had passed the bill with provision for the rebates and an employment tax credit for business.

But the House gave an indication Tuesday that it is ready to go along in general with the Senate on the issue. It deleted funds for the rebates from its binding budget, but left the business stimulus in, despite arguments that it was inequitable to keep the incentives for business and deny help to individuals.

REGISTERED NURSES Jean Tracy, Jean Shaffer, Margaret Sollars and Nancy Black stand in front of a map which shows in what state each of the registered nurses employed at Fayette County Memorial Hospital was educated. The map is presently on Display at Craig's Department Store and was created as a part of the annual May Day Breakfast festivities.

Event scheduled May 3

County's nurses preparing for 28th annual breakfast

The traditional May Day breakfast, looked forward to by many Washington C.H. area residents for its famed ham and eggs or sausage and pancakes courses, will be held Tuesday, May 3 in the Mahan Building on the Fayette County Fairgrounds.

The annual fund-raising event, sponsored by the Fayette County Professional Nurses Association, started in 1950 at the former Eagles Hall where only 500 persons could be served. Because of the ever-increasing attendance, the breakfast was moved to Mahan Building which can accommodate 1,500 to 2,000 persons.

Many of the supplies for the event are donated by local merchants with the remainder being purchased by the nurses association.

To provide an idea of what is needed for such an undertaking, the nurses will be securing 200 pounds of ham, 375 pounds of sausage, 168 dozen eggs and 40 pounds of butter for the 28th annual breakfast.

Preparations for the breakfast will begin at 12 midnight Monday, May 2. Several nurses will be working throughout the night mixing scrambled eggs and pancake batter.

In the wee hours of the morning of Tuesday, May 3, the cooking will begin in preparation for the early arrivals who begin drifting into the Mahan Building around 5:30 a.m., although serving will not officially begin until 6 a.m. The breakfast will continue through 10 a.m.

Proceeds from the annual event are used by the Fayette County Professional Nurses Association to provide scholarships for girls interested in pursuing professional nursing careers and to purchase new equipment for Fayette County Memorial Hospital.

During the past 28 years, approximately 43 registered nursing students have been assisted by funds raised at the annual breakfast. Loans to the prospective nurses have totaled over $45,000.

Nearly 2,000 Washington C.H. area residents attended last year's May Day breakfast. Proceeds from the breakfast usually range between $1,500 and $2,000.

Currently, students planning to attend a professional nursing school next year can apply for an interest-free

Interview series starts next week

Nixon to end Watergate silence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Nixon's public silence on Watergate will end next Wednesday, after exactly 1,000 days.

In the first of four taped interview-for-pay, Nixon the citizen will accept questions that Nixon the president turned away. What revelations result from the 90-minute program is known only to its participants and they will say only that "It's exceedingly dramatic."

Interviewer David Frost, who reportedly paid the former president $600,000, says, "I believe viewers will feel that this confrontation tests the Nixon accounting of Watergate the way and with the intensity that it should be tested."

Nixon last referred to Watergate in public on Aug. 8, 1974, when he announced his resignation. By accident or design, the interval adds to 1,000 days.

Frost, a personality on British and American television, shuffled the four programs around to begin with Watergate.

"We decided to put the Watergate show first because it's extremely dramatic and it's necessary to have the air cleared on Watergate to consider equally important and less controversial aspects of his presidency," says C. Robert Zelnick, a member of Frost's staff.

"From the beginning, we regarded as one of our missions . . . to ask questions that might have been asked had not President Ford pardoned him a month after he left office."

Nixon resigned saying that Watergate had cost him the support of Congress and that to fight "for my personal vindication" would absorb all his time. The pardon for any and all crimes during his 5½-year presidency foreclosed any subsequent prosecution.

Zelnick, supervising a three-man team of researchers for the Frost interviews, said Watergate was saved for last in the 11 non-consecutive days of interviews at a private home near Nixon's own San Clemente, Calif., residence.

"A very rigorous interrogation on alleged abuse areas could conceivably have affected our relationship in other areas," he said.

He said the Watergate portion "will be as dramatic an hour and a half of television as anything I have ever seen

New attempt to plug North Sea well made

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — A seven-man crew went aboard Bravo rig in the North Sea's Ekofisk field today and resumed preparations for an attempt to cap the runaway gusher spewing out 36,000 gallons an hour.

"Weather conditions are fine," said a spokesman. "It is clear and there is a slight southern breeze which has reduced the concentration of gas in the platform area and reduced the danger of explosion."

Capping efforts were thwarted once by a gale and twice by too little wind, which caused a buildup of suffocating gases and chased the workers from the Phillips Petroleum Company's Bravo rig on Tuesday.

"You could say we're entering a decisive 24 hours," Gordan Goering, head of the Phillips company in Norway, told a news conference Tuesday night.

A Norwegian government official told reporters: "The capping operation has a real chance of success and we generally take a conservative position on these things."

Capping experts "Boots" Hansen and Richard Hattberg of Houston, Texas, and four Phillips men worked for six hours on the rig Tuesday.

Wearing fire-resistant overalls and using brass tools that do not create sparks, the crew installed and tightened bolts on the blowout preventer. They also put in place two hydraulic rams which are to snap together and pinch the pipe closed during the capping operation.

"At this time, the blowout preventer is not completely assembled. It is not possible to project the progress of future work, mainly because of unpredictable weather," a statement from the company said.

About 1 p.m., Hansen radioed the wind had died and was no longer carrying off the gases escaping with the oil.

"You can drown in that gas," a Phillips spokesman explained. "It's not toxic, but there's no oxygen left to breathe. It's also incredibly volatile and poses an obvious fire threat."

A spark could trigger an explosion and fire that would probably collapse the rig and set afire the flow from 14 other wells that discharge through Bravo.

Nearly 5 million gallons of oil are estimated to have gushed from the 10,000-foot-deep well since it blew out Friday night during maintenance operations. So far, there was no threat to any of the countries around the North Sea.

Waves divided the spill into two slicks. The larger one was a ragged, irregularly shaped mass 10 to 12 miles wide and 15 to 20 miles long. The smaller one measured 2 to 3 miles square, Phillips said.

Norwegian officials said the spill covered an area of 150 square miles and its nearest point to land was about 170 miles from the west coast of Norway. Movement of the oil shifted with the winds.

Cleanup efforts appeared to be lagging. Three sweeper ships using booms to trap the oil and skimmers to pick it up were only able to collect about 6,000 gallons. Officials said that because of nearby fish spawning grounds, they had decided not to use chemicals to break up the slick.

To receive forms only

City income tax office to be open on Saturday

The city income tax department office will operate under extended schedule Saturday to receive forms from late filers.

Raldon M. Smith, city income tax administrator, said he will be in the office for four hours on Saturday to receive the forms only. No personnel will be available to assist persons in completing the income tax forms.

Smith will be in the office from 8 a.m. to 12 noon Saturday, but will be available for a longer period if necessary.

"If there's enough people coming and going, I'll stay until at least 5 p.m.," Smith stated.

The city administration building on N. Fayette Street, which houses the income tax department, is normally closed all day on Saturday.

Saturday is the filing deadline for Washington C. H.'s one-half per cent city income tax.

Taxpayers not filing before the April 30 deadline will be subject to a one per cent penalty (plus interest) per month of $10, whichever is greater.

"Only persons who do not have the city income tax withheld at the source (by employers) are required to file," Smith said.

A sophisticated computerized program implemented this year by the city income tax department has eliminated the filing requirement for persons who had the tax withheld by their employers.

Only about 10 per cent of the estimated 11,000 persons subject to the city income tax are required to file forms.

Last year all eligible taxpayers were required to file returns which were verified manually by city officials.

Persons who are required to complete the forms before Saturday should have received the document by mail. These persons include workers who did not have the tax withheld by employers, self-employed workers and owners of rental property.

Forms can be obtained from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. through Friday at the city administration building, or at the lobby of the Washington C. H. Post Office.

Smith said he expects to begin processing returns for overpayments early next month.

Water from icebergs

Rhode Island is, as even its most ardent champions would freely admit, not a giant among states. Not in terms of physical size, at any rate. But an iceberg almost the size of Rhode Island is... well, a giant among icebergs.

One such, we are told, is grounded near Palmer Land in Antarctica and can be expected to break loose from the continent before long. This it will drift northward, slowly disintegrating in the South Atlantic Ocean.

The iceberg's statistics are impressive: it is about 74 kilometers long, some 40 across, and 230 to 345 meters thick. That translates to around 49 by 25 miles, and 735 to more than 1,000 feet thick. Most of it is pure water ice - which would melt down to enough water, says George Alexander in the Los Angeles Times, "to slake California's thirst for more than 1,000 years."

This coupled with California's present drought problems, prompts further thought about an idea that has been kicking around for some years. Suppose, a few scientific visionaries suggest, icebergs were to be towed from their birthing in the Arctic or Antarctic and then anchored offshore in arid regions of the world: the American Southwest, say, or the Arab desert states.

This may sound wildly impracticable, yet the National Science Foundation took the idea seriously enough to commission a study by the Rand Corporation. And Rand found it sufficiently intriguing to propose a test with a small iceberg.

So far, this has not been undertaken. The Saudi Arabian government has such a project under consideration, however; it is studying the feasibility of herding a 'berg into the Red Sea and tapping it for irrigation and drinking water.

There are practical questions: How much energy would be required to tow an iceberg to where it's wanted? How much of its water would be lost en route, and could this loss be reduced somehow? What would be the best method of transferring iceberg water to land? It would not be easy. But if demand for water becomes great enough in parched areas, icebergs may some day be used to fill the need.

A WORD EDGEWISE...By John P. Roche

Israel on Castro's hit list

It's understandable why American entrepreneurs should push the normalization of relations with Castro's Cuba. They have never been troubled by dictatorships per se - only by those which undermine the sovereignty of the $ Henry Ford's investment in Soviet Russia contributed more to the survival of the regime than the labors of all American Communists put together. Stalin needed trucks far more than the Communist International, which - with his characteristic brutal realism - he once referred to as a "thieves kitchen."

Thus, as long as he finds the United States government prepared to insure his investment, our friendly neighborhood capitalist will sell indiscriminately to the just and the unjust. Probably this glorification of Adam Smith reached its apogee a few years ago when Scoop Jackson discovered American manufacturers prepared to exhibit and sell sophisticated surveillance equipment, fancy bugs and other "security" items in Moscow. Needless to say, there was only one potential purchaser: Vladimir Bukovsky reports the handcuffs used by the K.G.B. were "Made in U.S.A." Undoubtedly they are a superior product.

However, those who hold strong social democratic or liberal convictions take, or should take, a different position. Sometimes it may seem a bit nutty: I have Jewish friends who have refused, for example, to buy Volkswagens because of their provenance. For my part - because support for the Spanish Republic was the issue which symbolized my break with my Coughlinite father - it was inconceivable to set foot in Franco's Spain. At 16 I sat in a New York Trans Lux theater crying as the newsreel showed Franco's troops entering Madrid. At 50 I refused to debark from the airplane at a gas stop in Barcelona.

Yet, personal eccentricities aside, there is no reason why we should not put ideological considerations into our national policy computations. It would be idiotic to say, "Don't normalize relations with Havana because John Roche hates Castro's totalitarianism." It would, however, be perfectly reasonable to set certain preconditions of a generic sort. Respect for human rights is one; another is ceasing to participate in wars of "liberation" aimed at strengthening Moscow's protection racket and or destroying our friends.

In this context, let us briefly explore Castro's commitments to the destruction of Israel. It is not generally realized that long before his Hessians turned up in Angola, they were operating in the Middle East. During the 1967 Arab-Israeli War, the Israeli Defense Force (IDF) launched a full-court press for Israeliis fluent in Spanish: Sadat's MIGS had Cuban pilots and the IDF needed to monitor their chatter. Syria was more secure: its pilots talked Korean.

Between 1967 and 1973, Cuban cadres remained in both Egypt and Syria (others, as Castro boasted in a virtually unnoticed 1974 speech, were already working in Africa), giving advanced weapons training. The Syrians in particular were drilled in the use of amphibious equipment, a clear indication that the next war with Israel was to be an all-out affair, not a quest for territories lost in 1967.

These "advisers" like their Soviet counterparts went in with the ferocious Yom Kippur assault in October, 1973. Subsequently they were joined by a Cuban armored brigade, which entered the order of battle in the closing hours of the war. Moreover, while Moscow has always been officially cautious in regard to the status of the Palestine Liberation Front, Castro enthusiastically endorsed its central goal: the demolition of the state of Israel. He reiterated this theme on his recent tour of inspection.

Now odd as it may seem, I am not prepared - as a number of American liberals seem to be - to say "boys will be boys" and kiss Fidel on both cheeks. Normalization is fine, but it involves reciprocity, and Cuba needs it far more than we do. So let Castro take the normalization initiative by freeing political prisoners and employing his army growing sugar instead of as hit men for the Moscow Mafia.

"JUST ONCE MAY I LISTEN TO PRESIDENT CARTER WITHOUT YOUR INSTANT ANALYSIS?"

New electric motor major breakthrough

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An electrical engineer has designed a more efficient electric motor which he says could save one to two million barrels of oil per day if it is put into wide use.

Cravens Wanlass told a news conference Monday that his "controlled torque" motor uses up to one-third less power than most electric motors. State officials termed the motor a "major billion-dollar breakthrough for energy conservation."

The Santa Ana, Calif., engineer said the motor, developed in his home workshop, uses more efficient windings and larger capacitors — energy-storing devices — than conventional motors. The larger capacitors allow more energy to be stored within the motor for use as needed.

"It's not an obvious design ... it looks like a dumb thing to do," Wanlass said. Glenn Bjorklund, a spokesman for Southern California Edison Co., which tested the device, said, "No one ever thought about doing it the way he did."

Wanlass said the new motor could be used in air conditioners, swimming pool filter motors, washing machines and other appliances as well as industrial machinery.

He said it would cost about $40 to modify a current one horsepower electric motor to his design. But he added that motors in some appliances, such as refrigerators, would be more difficult to convert because of their casings.

Several hundred of the motors have been tested in Southern California for several months, Wanlass said. Officials at a fast-food operation in Santa Monica said the 11 motors tested at the establishment since February resulted in a 20 per cent power savings.

Wanlass estimates that between one and two million barrels of oil could be saved each day for every 500 million motors converted. The United States consumes 18 million barrels of oil per day.

A study for the Federal Energy Commission last year found that more than half of all the electricity generated in the nation runs electric motors in industry, business and homes.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Poor taste can't be legislated

DEAR ABBY: I would like to respond to DISGUSTED IN BOSTON about his concern for beauty on the streets and in the shopping centers. "Queen-sized" women in tight pants are indeed unsightly, if not klutzy.

However, has it occurred to DISGUSTED, that while he is so zealously championing legislation against such visual pollution, he might also include certain male klutzes.

I refer to men with offensively protruding beer bellie thinly covered by outstretched T-shirts. Trousers cannot begin to scale such heights and dutifully ride low, all the better to reveal proud displays of ridiculously laden, overstuffed abdomens.

You see, DISGUSTED, there are two sides to every coin and, really, personal decorum rests with the individual. Or should we also attempt to make illegal body odor, runs in stockings, nail biting, etc.?

Poor taste is hardly a matter of legislation, and while there is much to be said for a More Beautiful America, surely there are more weighty problems on which we should expend our efforts!

SEES BOTH SIDES IN N.C.
DEAR BOTH: It's only fair to show both sides. And I'm on yours.

DEAR ABBY: I invited 22 people to my home for Easter Sunday dinner at noon. Everyone but my husband's brother and wife accepted. She said, "I'm sorry, I already promised my mother we'd go over to her house for the noon meal, but we'll be hungry again at 7 p.m., so we'll come to your house for leftovers. Okay, honey?"

Not knowing what else to say, I said, "Okay."

Well, they came at 7 p.m., with three other couples I didn't even know, and cleaned me out of all my leftovers and ran.

I stood in my kitchen doing dishes until midnight. I'm plenty burned up because I had plans for those leftovers.

I'll leave it up to you, Abby. How could I have gotten out of letting her come when she invited herself?

DEAR TUCKERED: Just because people invite themselves is no reason to make them welcome.

You could have said, "I'm sorry, but my dinner party is at NOON, and I expect to be tucked out at 7 p.m., so let's make it some other time. Okay, honey?"

DEAR ABBY: I am steaming mad about all of the pollution going on. Not just air and water pollution, but littering. Today at lunch, I saw a middle-aged woman sit in her car in a restaurant parking lot and throw out ONE but THREE paper napkins out the window.

Being responsible citizens, my girlfriend and I picked them up and calmly handed them back to her through her open window, and said, "I think you dropped these."

At this point she got hot and mouthy. I calmly informed her that what she did was against the law and was called "littering." Then walked away.

What kind of example is the older generation setting for young people today if this is their normal practice?

SUSIE IN W. COVINA
DEAR SUSIE: A very bad one. And good for you and your girlfriend for having the courage and taking the time to do as you did.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Girl Scouts registrations due by May 15 for Camp Gipiwa

Are you a Girl Scout? Do you like to go hiking in the woods, do outdoor cookery, bird watching, learn about wild flowers and plants, sing and hear stories? If so, why not plan to attend Girl Scout camp at Camp Gipiwa July 11-15 this year? Here, girls learn to plan, live and play together.

Camp Gipiwa is in a hilly wooded 39 acre area, bordered by Rattlesnake Creek, 11 miles south of Washington C.H., near New Martinsburg. The camp is used by Fayette County and Greenfield Girl Scouts.

Day Camp is scheduled for one session, July 11-15. Any Girl Scout, whether a Brownie, Cadette or Junior, may attend. Registrations are $6.50 per girl and must be sent in to troop leaders by May 15. Reservations will be made on a first-come, first-served basis, but none will be accepted after the deadline of May 15, due to the training sessions for staff members.

The staff will include a director and assistant, unit leaders, a registered nurse or a licensed practical nurse, and the Greenfield Emergency Squad will be on call at all times. Safety is stressed, and there was not one accident reported during last year's session. On the final evening of camp, crafts will be on display for parents to view.

"Open house" is being planned at Camp Gipiwa for June 26, for all Girl Scouts, parents, friends, and anyone interested in Girl Scouting.

Girl Scouting is supported in Fayette County in part by the Community Chest.

SPRINGTIME COBBLER— Top a delectable combination of fresh rhubarb and strawberries with refrigerated biscuits rolled in melted butter and a mixture of grated orange rind and then bake. Terrifically good!

Easy way to make a cobbler

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

In springtime, many a good cook's fancy turns to one of the most delicious of all American desserts — fresh rhubarb and strawberry cobbler. If you've never tried this combination, you have something to look forward to.

Right now, handsome red or pink stalks of fresh rhubarb are in markets. Take advantage of the moment because the rhubarb season doesn't last forever! According to our guide to average monthly availability of fresh fruits and vegetables, April and May are the peak months for rhubarb; there's usually a fair amount around in June, too, but after that supplies are negligible.

When you bring fresh rhubarb into the kitchen, refrigerate it at once so the fruit will stay in good crisp condition. Although botanically rhubarb is a vegetable, since 1947 it's been officially considered a fruit because its principal use in the home is that of other types of fruit.

Rhubarb, once called "pieplant," has been grown in the United States since 1820. Then, according to horticultural historians, a gentleman in Connecticut "purchased a small package of pieplant seeds and raised the first plants then known in the vicinity." Growing rhubarb for market started in New England but eventually spread to Washington, Michigan, California, Oregon and New York.

Somewhere along the line, American cooks discovered that the high acidity and flavor of rhubarb tasted remarkably good with fresh strawberries. After that the two fruits were combined for pies, preserves, dainties, slumps, grunts — and cobblers.

A cobbler, according to Webster, is a "deep-dish fruit pie without a bottom crust but with a thick biscuit top crust." It's an old-fashioned dish that lends itself beautifully to speedy modern-day treatment. The fresh fruit for it is easy to prepare and for the topping you can use a package of refrigerated biscuits. In the following recipe, the biscuits taste particularly good because they are dipped in melted butter and a mixture of sugar and grated orange rind before they are placed atop the fruit and baked.

EASY RHUBARB STRAWBERRY COBBLER
1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
1/8 teaspoon salt
1 pint fresh strawberries (halved if small, quartered if large)
2 cups sliced (1/2-inch wide) rhubarb
10 -ounce can refrigerated flaky, fluffy or butter-style biscuits
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted

1-3rd cup sugar mixed with 1 tablespoon grated orange rind
In a medium saucepan stir together the 1 cup sugar, the cornstarch and salt. Stir in the strawberries and rhubarb. Cook over moderate heat, stirring often, until hot, bubbly and slightly thickened. Pour into a 2-quart round glass casserole (8 1/4 by 2 3/4 inches) or similar utensil.

Separate the biscuit dough into 10 biscuits; cut each in half vertically. Dip each half biscuit in the melted butter, then roll lightly in the sugar orange mixture. Arrange the half-biscuits, cut sides down, on the hot fruit in a circle around the edge of the casserole.

Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until the biscuit topping is browned — 15 to 20 minutes. Serve warm with cream.

Makes 6 to 8 servings.
Note: Half a pound of fresh rhubarb should make the 2 cups called for.

Roses, and Other Things

By Howard Knutson

Now that we're approaching the month of May, let's take a look at some of the problems we may encounter—it's always easier to solve a problem if you can make preparation ahead of time.

In cleaning up the trash and compost, we can expect to find sow-bugs, a small insect which looks like a miniature armadillo, and which will roll into a ball when it is disturbed. This is a scavenger insect, useful in breaking down organic matter, and can well be left alone, unless they happen to be in an area where you don't want them. If you feel it is necessary to destroy them, you can use a product which contains spectracide, diazinon, carbaryl, or sevin.

Another pest often found with the sowbug is the millepede—a long, thin bug with a body of one hundred to two hundred segments, each having two legs, giving rise to its common name. This, also, is a scavenger bug, mostly destroying debris, but it sometimes will attack the roots of young grass or small vegetables. This can also be destroyed with a product containing spectracide, sevin, or carbaryl.

Right now, many beetles are in the ground in the form of grubs or cutworms; sometime during the month they will pupate, undergoing the change to the adult beetle form. If you treat the ground early, while they are still in the immature forms, you can obtain fairly complete control; if you wait until the adults emerge, they will be harder to control, plus much of the early damage will have been done. You can use a good ground drench of a spectracide-diazinon product, or, if you suspect the possibility of Japanese beetle present, you are still allowed to use chlordane; this will incidentally also give a better control of the other beetles present, but is only labelled for the Japanese. Keep in mind—in referring to a ground drench, I am still referring to the grub or pupating forms; if you wait until the adults have emerged, you will have to use products containing malathion, carbaryl, sevin, or methoxychlor—none of these will kill all beetles, so be sure to check the label for your specific pest.

Remember last year how many of the cucumbers, and other cubits, started growing such healthy-looking vines, only to suddenly begin wilting, in spite of everything you did to try to save them? The real culprit is cucumber wilt, caused indirectly by the striped cucumber beetle, during the month of May or later. The adult will feed upon the plant, but actually causes little real damage by itself; the problem arises because some of the beetles carry the bacteria which attack the plant circulation system, clogging it and causing wilt later in the season. If you have the ground treated as above for other beetles, you can probably kill most of the pests before they emerge. If the ground has not been treated, the pest is able to produce two or three

PARMESAN ASPARAGUS

This makes a feast!

1 pound medium-thick asparagus
1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons water
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese

Break off tough whitish ends from asparagus. Soak in a sink generously filled with hot water for 5 minutes to relax the bracts so extraneous material will float out; soak in cold water for 10 minutes to refresh. Drain. With a sharp knife slice spears diagonally into very thin ovals up to buds; slice each bud in half lengthwise. Put the butter, water, salt and asparagus in an 8-inch skillet with a dome cover. Bring to simmering; cover tightly and simmer until as tender as you like — 3 to 5 minutes; watch so water evaporates but asparagus does not scorch. Off heat, sprinkle with the cheese or stir it in. Makes 2 large delicious servings.

Goodyear sets drilling expansion

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. is expanding its natural gas drilling program to a deeper and more costly area below the Clinton formation from which most of Ohio's gas comes.

With three successful natural gas wells on its own property here, Goodyear has decided to probe what's known as the Rose Run stratum with a 6,500-foot experimental well on land leased in Jackson County.

Geologists figure the Rose Run could be five times as productive as the Clinton formation. But since the cost, and thus the risk, is greater, Goodyear said, the Ohio Energy Resource and Development Agency will underwrite one-third of the cost.

Computer bill backed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The House Commerce and Labor Committee recommended passage Tuesday night of a bill designed to protect Ohioans from computer age technology in the supermarket.

The bill requires retail grocery outlets switching to computerized pricing to continue to mark prices in Arabic numerals on individual items—with the exception of some small items.

Rep. Sherrod Brown, D-61 Mansfield, reintroduced the bill this year after having a similar measure vetoed at the last session by Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Rhodes apparently subscribed to contentions of the Ohio Council of Retail Merchants, which is still fighting the legislation, that it would preclude stores from saving labor costs which otherwise could be passed along to consumers.

Brown and other supporters said individual pricing is an aid to the elderly and uneducated, and that the simple posting of prices on supermarket shelves—as proposed in the computer setup—is ineffective and prone to error.

Use of the computer system involves the printing of coded lines on food packages which cause the price to be run up when scanned by a light device at the checkout counter.

It does offer the consumer a detailed printout of the items he has purchased, the weight or volume, and the price, for checking against errors.

Cleveland firm gets contract

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — A joint venture headed by a Cleveland, Ohio, firm was cleared by Maryland officials Tuesday to receive a $40.7 million contract to construct a portion of the $750 billion Baltimore subway system.

The contract was conditionally awarded to the combine headed by Clevecon Inc. Friday by the state Board of Public Works pending the firm's submission to the Mass Transit Administration of its subcontracts with two minority firms slated to get a $2.8 million share of the main contract.

TV Viewing

By GINNY PITT

Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — When television producer Joan Shigekawa approaches industry executives with ideas for programs of interest to women, she is generally told that "target audience" shows are not marketable.

Noting that the majority of the U.S. population is female and the majority of the U.S. television viewing audience is female, Ms. Shigekawa asks: "Why is the female population considered a target audience? Why aren't men the target?"

In fact, most television programming is aimed directly at the minority of the viewing audience — men, Ms. Shigekawa says. There is a need for programming aimed at women and there is a market for programs of interest to women, she says, but such programs rarely get on the air because industry executives and sponsors are mostly male.

Since 1973, Ms. Shigekawa, 40, has been executive producer of a Public Broadcasting Service series, "Woman Alive!" It began as a series of hour-long documentaries on topics of interest to women.

Although the programs were well-received by viewers, financing became a problem in the second season and the series was cut back to half-hour programs.

This year, Ms. Shigekawa proposed a series of 12 hour-long documentaries, with funding of $2.2 million. But the $2.2 million she hoped to raise from various corporations and foundations which sponsor other PBS programs was not to be found.

"Most of them said, 'Gee, this looks interesting, but we'll have to pass.' The reason they always gave was that money was tight and they were all filled up on their commitments."

"But we found out later, of course, that corporations have such a poor record in their own treatment of females that they couldn't very well put money into sponsoring programs with feminist themes," Ms. Shigekawa said in a recent interview.

The Corporation for Public Broadcasting and Ms. magazine eventually provided funding for the series, but only on a limited basis — enough for just five hour-long documentaries at about $60,000 each.

With the limited amount of money available, Ms. Shigekawa decided to distribute it to as many women as possible, so she assigned five different women to produce films for the series.

The first program was broadcast April 8 on public television stations across the country. The second and third programs dealt with how the feminist movement has changed the lives of some women.

This Friday, the show features a film made at a British shelter for battered wives. The last program, to be aired May 6, consists of four segments — a photographic essay on girls reaching womanhood; self-defense and assertiveness training; female farmers, and women who left a sewing factory to start a plant which treats women with respect and dignity.

Energy plan gives boost to company

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — President Carter's spurs to the national energy conscience means business for the acknowledged leader in the insulation business.

Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., with headquarters here for 21 domestic plants and a dozen international affiliates, has twice the capacity for making insulation as the other two domestic producers, Johns Manville Corp., and CertainTeed Products Corp.

The federal government reported the industry shipped 2.1 billion pounds of insulation last year. Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, the brokerage firm, estimated last fall insulation producing capacities at 1.25 billion pounds for Owens-Corning; 500 million pounds for Johns Manville and 600 million pounds for CertainTeed.

Merrill Lynch estimated the three were operating at 83 per cent of capacity at that time.

Owens-Corning President W. W. Boeschstein expects the company to benefit both from new home building and from renovation.

"The added impetus of a government energy program will likely accelerate the re-insulation trend which has been ongoing for the past several years, as well as increase per unit demand for insulation in new construction," he said.

"Beyond that, until more details are available, including legislative action, it is difficult to assess overall implications of a government program."

County deputy assists in auto theft arrests

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department assisted in the apprehension of two men who were allegedly driving a stolen car early Wednesday. Fayette County Sheriff Donald L. Thompson reported that the Franklin County Sheriff's Department reported that one of its cruisers was in pursuit of the vehicle which was southbound on Interstate 71.

Deputy David J. Krupla joined in the pursuit when the suspects entered Fayette County and the vehicle was stopped near the Ohio 41 exit near Jeffersonville exit.

Taken into custody were Thaddeus B. Havlett, 20, and Ken W. McDonald, 23. Neither suspect gave authorities an address, but the car is believed to have been stolen from Alabama.

Krupla and Sheriff's Sgt. Sonny Yinger of Franklin County learned through questioning the two men that Havlett was wanted in Alabama for robbery. The two men were taken to Franklin County jail to await a court appearance.

The Washington C.H. Police Department arrested 24-year-old Harold E. Kingery on an assault charge, Tuesday.

The assault complaint was filed by his wife, Donna K. Kingery, 25, of Springfield. She told police officers that she and her husband were involved in an argument when he became violent and started striking her. The incident occurred at 733 E. Temple St., police said.

Panel backs $4 billion jobs bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is ready to approve the first part of President Carter's economic package, nearly three months after he asked lawmakers for prompt action to stimulate the economy.

After a seven-week dispute, a Senate-House conference committee agreed Tuesday on a $4 billion jobs bill that would pay for construction of bridges, sewers, hospitals and other local public works projects.

It is expected to create at least 150,000 jobs and possibly as many as 400,000, depending on how it is administered locally, congressional aides said.

Congress still has not acted on a separate $4.1 billion program for public service jobs, a $1.9 billion program to train youths, a $600 million revenue sharing plan and Carter's tax bill.

Today the Senate was considering a $7.9 billion-a-year permanent tax cut sponsored by Republicans. It would replace the $50-per-person tax rebate plan that Carter dropped two weeks ago. Carter opposes the permanent tax cut.

Senate leaders hope to finish the tax bill this week and turn to the jobs bill. Committee aides say the House may get the jobs bill next week.

Congress spent $2 billion last year on the public works jobs program in an attempt to bring unemployment under control. Since December the unemployment rate has dropped from 7.8 per cent to 7.3 per cent but it is still considered too high by economists.

First headpieces used for sanitary purposes

True origin of nursing caps obscured in unknown history

Who first wore a nurse's cap?

Well, the origin is obscure, buried in tradition of unknown nursing history. No one has ever discovered the true origin of the cap, although it is known that the many first so-called nurses came from monasteries or religious sects and wore long flowing headwear. It has been stated that some early health care was provided by destitute women of questionable moral character who wore headcoverings for another reason—to hide hair and skin infections.

Catholic nuns, who have always worn habits, are often nurses and their habit serves as their cap. In recent years, the nun's headcovering length has shortened along with their skirt lengths, but yet, remain large enough to cover most of the head. The nun's habit is unlike a nurse's head as is the custom in capwear now-a-days. The size of caps has been abbreviated over the years.

With many conjectures of the origin, Florence Nightingale, the founder of modern nursing, believed in caps for sanitary purposes. Hair had its place under a headcovering—a cap. Probably, it has always been a problem for women to arrange their hair attractively in and around a nurse's cap. But, a modern nurse will readily agree that a "surgical" cap is even worse than the regular nurse's cap. The surgical caps completely flatten hairdos and if someone can manage to look good while wearing a surgical cap, then she is truly beautiful.

Remember when, in the past, every "lady" wore a cap indoors? Many pictures of Queen Victoria portray her with a cap of plain stiffened muslin framed around her face. How many of us remember a grandmother or great-aunt who usually wore a ruffled dust cap? Some historians say the wearing of nurse's caps came from the Sisters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul. They established the first modern nursing school in Paris in 1864. The veil headcovering naturally was included in the proper uniform. Another opinion suggests that the stiff white caps worn by the women at the Institute of Protestant Deaconesses, founded in 1836, in Germany, influenced the nurse cap movement.

Anyway, the cap stuck. Today, every school has a "capping ceremony" for its students following a period of rigid testing of individual instruction and endurance. It is equal to the romantic and glamorous Knighthood Investiture practiced in King Arthur's Round Table days. So, it remains one of the most exciting days of a nursing career — it is the important day that a nurse receives her cap, the symbol of her profession.

We hear about eliminating sex discrimination in today's world and although nursing was once thought to be only for women, lately more men are entering it. So, it has worked in reverse—men's lib.

The first thing you might ask since this article is about caps is "Do men nurses wear them too?" No. In fact, the entire uniform for them has always created a problem since if they wear white they are confused with either doctors or orderlies. Usually, a student will wear a collar or arm insignia, school pin and name tag, which will help identify the registered male nurse from the doctor. Even the name "male nurse" is unacceptable to many, so that is still a problem not yet resolved.

There are no men in nursing in Fayette County yet (with the exception of one male nurse who is currently in practical nursing school), but nursing nevertheless is considered a "him and her" career choice today. In hospitals where there are men nurses, the women nurses ask on occasion, "Why must we wear caps if they don't have to?" So, it can cause one to wonder if the cap tradition will live forever.

Town meet proves flop

CLINTON, Mass. (AP) — Without an attraction like President Carter, Clinton can't get residents to town meetings.

Thousands gathered when Carter attended a mock meeting here in March, but a scant 268 persons showed up Monday for the real thing.

The annual meeting had to be postponed until Thursday because of the lack of a 300-voter quorum, officials said, and consideration of a budget exceeding $6 million was put in abeyance.

Those who did show up Monday offered some solutions, perhaps tongue-in-cheek.

"Do you think we could get the President back for a real town meeting?" one man suggested after adjournment.

"I'd settle for Mondale or a cabinet member," another of the town's 7,500 registered voters quipped.

Jury returns innocent verdict

A 12-member jury deliberated for one hour Tuesday before returning an innocent verdict in the kidnap-rape trial of Richard D. Wilt in Fayette County Common Pleas Court.

Wilt, 41, of 10310 Allen Road, was charged with kidnapping and raping his former wife, Mrs. Barbara Jean Wilt, last Dec. 12 by Fayette County sheriff's deputies.

The verdict of the 10-man, two-woman jury ended the two-day trial which featured testimony from Mrs. Wilt and the defendant, Richard Wilt. The defendant took the stand Tuesday afternoon and told the court his recollections of the Dec. 12 incident.

After Wilt testified in his own behalf, the jury was instructed the proper procedure of returning a verdict by Judge Evelyn W. Coffman. At 5:30 p.m., a little over an hour after being dismissed, the jury reached a verdict.

Fayette County Clerk of Courts Ann Marvin read the not guilty verdicts on the two charges and Wilt was exonerated.

Wilt and his ex-wife gave conflicting stories of the events of Dec. 12. Both stated that she was driving in Xenia early that morning and he was following her in another car.

Mrs. Wilt claimed her ex-husband's auto bumped the rear of her car several times. Wilt claimed the cars bumped just once and it was an accident. Two defense witnesses who were in the car with Wilt supported his story. They both said that the one bumping incident occurred when a pack of chewing gum fell on the floor.

Mrs. Wilt then testified that she had stopped at the Greene County Sheriff's Department in Xenia to report the incident. Wilt told a deputy that he wanted to know the location of his four children. The deputy relayed a message from Mrs. Wilt to Wilt that the children were with relatives in Frankfort.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Wilt claimed that she followed his car out of Xenia on U.S. 35 toward Washington C.H. Mrs. Wilt claimed that she turned on Allen Road, near the U.S. 35 and Interstate 71 intersection, to take another route to Frankfort without having to follow her ex-husband. Wilt said he thought she was driving to his residence approximately one mile down the Allen Road and he turned his car around and followed her.

Again the stories differed. Mrs. Wilt claimed that her ex-husband pulled the vehicle in front of her car and forced his way into her automobile. Wilt said he pulled his car in front, came back to the car, opened the door and asked her to move over.

Testimony showed that the two drove to Wilt's house. He claimed she went willingly. She said she was forced to go with her former husband.

During Monday's testimony Mrs. Wilt claimed that he took her clothes off once they were in the house and raped her. He claimed no force was used.

Both of the Wilt's testified that later they went to the Royal Castle restaurant on U.S. 35. She claimed she screamed for help and three persons in the restaurant at that time did not offer help. He admitted that she was upset at the restaurant, but that she did not call for help.

The Wilt's, then, apparently drove back to the Allen Road residence. Mrs.

Wilt claimed that she was raped again.

Mrs. Wilt claimed that her former husband held a pistol up to her head during the night. Wilt claimed she stated that she wished she was dead. He then took a pistol he kept under the mattress of the bed and offered it to her saying that if she wanted to kill herself here was a gun. He then claimed that she did not take the gun and he put it back under the mattress. At no time was the gun near her head, he said.

The morning of Dec. 13, Mrs. Wilt said she was given the car keys and she drove to Xenia. Then, she drove to Washington C.H. with her parents to file charges. At that time, Mrs. Wilt was sent to Fayette County Memorial Hospital for observation.

John H. Roszmann, assistant Fayette County prosecuting attorney, presented as evidence a drawing made at that time of where a number of bruises were on the body.

Defense attorney Robert L. Brubaker contended that the bruises could have occurred anytime.

While reaching a verdict, the jury was given the drawing and other pieces of evidence to study.

Voters kill pay plan

By The Associated Press
Leaders of Cleveland's safety forces, upset over voter repeal of an automatic pay raise provision in the city charter, say councilmen may have won the skirmish but they have "started a war."

Richard Farragher, president of the Cleveland chapter of the Fraternal Order of Police, and Jack Gannon, head of the firefighters' local, issued similar statements indicating the war was on with City Council after election returns came in Tuesday night.

The returns showed that Clevelanders voted nearly 2-1 in the special election to repeal the charter amendment which pegs the pay of Cleveland police and firemen 3 per cent above pay scales in any other large city in the state.

Cuyahoga County Elections Director Virgil Brown said the vote was 43,374 for repeal, 23,050 opposed.

City Council President George Forbes, who spearheaded the fight for repeal of the amendment, said taxpayers "are tired of paying high prices for public services."

He said there were 23 unions representing city workers, "and now they will all have to come to the bargaining table."

Farragher said policemen's demands would be on Mayor Ralph Perk's desk "before the end of the week."

The pay raise vote highlighted several special elections around the state Tuesday.

Clearing skies across Ohio during the night combined with light winds to let temperatures fall into the 30s.

The morning weather map shows a weak trough of low pressure over Lake Michigan and Illinois which was expected to move east today. This could touch off a few showers in western counties this afternoon, accompanied by highs in the upper 60s and low 70s.

A cold front north of the Great Lakes is dropping southeast and will spread rain across Ohio late tonight and Thursday. This front will cause partly cloudy skies tonight with a chance of rain in the extreme north toward morning. Lows will be in the mid to upper 40s.

Thursday will be mostly cloudy and milder with showers or rain likely and highs in the mid to upper 50s north to the 60s central and south.

Friday through Sunday: Fair weather. Highs in the 60s Friday and the upper 60s and lower 70s Sunday. Lows in the 30s early Friday and in the 40s early Sunday.

Thomas Worthington, who became one of Ohio's first two senators and later governor, founded the Ohio State Library while governor in 1814-1818.

TV serial quitting, quitting

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" has been a television show of surprises, and it has pulled another one by announcing it is going off the air.

"Throughout television's history, hit shows have been allowed to run to the point where they fizzle out," producer-creator Norman Lear said Tuesday. "We didn't want that to be 'Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman's' fate."

Lear said the two-year-old syndicated series, an outrageous spoof of soap operas, was going into "voluntary retirement" this summer. It will stop production on June 14, although it will continue in reruns.

At a news conference with star Louise Lasser at his side, Lear denied that the show was being canceled because of sagging ratings. He also denied that the ratings were slipping, saying that it had remained a hit.

The show was "a phenomenon, a fact which by definition gives it a limited life," said Lear.

Miss Lasser denied industry rumors that she wanted out because of the grueling schedule of five shows a week. She said, "Louise didn't quit."

Altrusa Club community service project

Over 600 attend diabetes clinic

A total of 683 persons were screened at a hypertension and diabetes detection clinic sponsored by the Washington C.H. Altrusa Club as a community service project Tuesday.

Conducted in the Ohio Army National Guard Armory on S. Fayette Street, the event was presented in cooperation with the Ohio Department of Health and the Fayette County Health Department. Key persons from the state health department working with the Altrusa Club members were Dr. Aileen McKinley, Kathy Kluznick and Carolyn McKinley. Key figures from the local health department were Phyllis Richards and Elizabeth Wright.

The clinic was endorsed and supported by the Ohio Department of Health, the Fayette County Health Department, the Fayette County Professional Nurses Association and the Fayette County Medical Society.

Local community-oriented business persons contributed paid advertising to the cause, and Larry Hott, commander of the local Ohio National Guard unit, provided the Altrusa Club with invaluable assistance plus accommodations for the clinic.

Volunteer nurses involved in the free clinic were Joyce Hidy, Corrine Sperry, Linda Glass, Michele Moser, Jeanie Shaffer, Janice Senra, Gayle Roszmann, Betty Lundberg, Marjorie Sollars, Janet Stahl, Jane Roe, Barb Ladrach, Kathi Blamer, Toni Long, Pam Lorente, plus nurses from the county health department.

Volunteer technicians were Bruce Von Bargen, laboratory director, Sherry Semer, Carol Thompson, Betty Hyer, Sandy Gruber, Brenda Caudill, Molly Lloyd, Judy Black, Harriett Sellars and Janet Lindsey.

Persons from the Twenty Club who worked at the clinic were Flossie Fishthorn, Jane Doyle, Lea Cruea, Henrietta Kuhlwein, Mary Bell Pfersick, Ruth Pearce, and Jane Williams. Other volunteer workers were Dottie Hanes, Louise McCoy, Georgette Kelley, Sara Brown and Grace Nungesser, a member of the Chillicothe Altrusa Club.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE? — Fortunately for this little guy, his wasn't being checked. Most of the visitors to the Altrusa Club's free hypertension and diabetes screening clinic Tuesday were much older than the one pictured here, but he didn't seem to mind. He just waited patiently to see if his mom got a clean bill of health.

Ohio meet inspection to remain

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Having received no more opposition from the state agriculture department, a judge made permanent Tuesday an earlier order preventing Ohio from abandoning its meat and poultry inspection program.

Attorney Robert Kosydar, who represented the Ohio Association of Meat Processors, said the state agreed to continue the inspection program which it sought last month to turn over to the federal government.

Judge William Gillie of Franklin County Common Pleas Court issued the temporary restraining order in March when Ohio meat packers challenged a state announcement it would drop the program March 31.

John M. Stackhouse, Ohio director of agriculture, said at the time state standards duplicate federal inspection rules and the move would save Ohio $4 million over the next two years.

Special Counsel Victor Merullo said Stackhouse consented to the judgement to hold down confusion for Ohio's 673 licensed meat processors.

"This way we will let the Ohio Legislature decide whether Ohio is going to have a program or whether it will be turned over to the federal government," Merullo said. He noted the current biennial budget allots $3.5 million for meat and poultry inspections and that the budget being debated in the legislature proposes $4 million to continue it.

The little town of Russia in Shelby County was named by French settlers who had marched under Napoleon into Russia; the plains and the first Ohio winter when the snow fell reminded the pioneers of Russia.—AP

Carter brings fresh foreign policy approach

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In his first 100 days, Jimmy Carter made his crusade "to shape a world responsive to human aspirations" a hallmark of American foreign policy.

A newcomer to the international scene, the President also set an unusually public style of diplomacy, telling the people more than they are accustomed to hearing about U.S. objectives, while upsetting traditionalists who say he is complicating negotiations.

America's claim "to teach others how to live cannot be accepted," Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev admonished the former one-term governor of Georgia.

But Carter said he saw no reason for getting upset "every time Brezhnev sneezes."

He offered the Russians terms for a nuclear weapons agreement that would have a devastating impact on future Soviet ICBM capabilities. When Moscow turned him down Carter told congressional leaders he would "hang tough."

New to world affairs, Carter confessed on occasion that he had a lot to learn. But he operated during his break-in period with a confidence and freshness that could produce some major changes in American policy if he stays on course.

These would include:

—A nuclear weapons agreement with the Russians that not only slows the arms race but makes drastic reductions in existing arsenals. At the same time, Carter appears to be conditioning the American people to accept disarmament as a goal.

—Unprecedented recognition of the Palestinians. Already, Carter is the first American president to publicly endorse a "homeland" for them, which would be carved out of land held by Israel, as well as representation for Palestinians interests at a Geneva peace conference.

—Relations with Vietnam and Cuba, two old Communist adversaries. Carter has accepted the reality that only a tiny fraction of the 2,500 Americans missing in Indochina will ever be accounted for. And he authorized maritime talks with Havana despite Cuba's venturesome behavior in Africa.

—Withholding U.S. aid in order to coax other countries to relent in their violations of human rights. Three recipients, Argentina, Ethiopia and Uruguay, were cut and three others, Brazil, El Salvador and Guatemala, gave up American assistance to protest what they considered to be an intrusion into their domestic affairs.

Philosophically, Carter's concern for human rights reflected overriding American sentiment. It would be hard to find anyone to quarrel with the thoughts he expressed in a letter to Soviet dissident Andrei D. Sakharov in February.

"You may rest assured," Carter wrote, "that the American people and our government will continue our firm commitment to promote respect for human rights not only in our country but also abroad."

Still, there were obvious inconsistencies in the implementation of Carter's human rights crusade. And righteousness does not guarantee results.

The democracies on the U.S. military aid list are few, just as there are few of them in the world. On the other hand, some of the most repressive regimes, such as South Korea, the Philippines and Nicaragua, are being helped.

Moreover, the administration did not support a congressional resolution that directed the American delegate to multinational development banks to vote against aid to countries regularly violating human rights. A softer, nonbinding approach was endorsed instead.

Carter keyed his campaign primarily to the Soviet Union. And yet, there was no easing of the Russian crackdown on dissidents. Jewish emigration did not pick up.

The President also spoke out about conditions in South Korea, Cuba and other Latin-American countries. And he declared that events in Uganda "disgusted the entire civilized world."

The Russians took the criticism most personally.

"It would be naive to think you can make progress in the solution of difficult and important problems while charging the atmosphere with hostility and mistrust," said Georgi A. Arbatov, a close adviser to Brezhnev and a top U.S. watcher in the Kremlin.

But Carter, on the face of it at least, was unimpressed. He said he would not modify his human rights stands, declaring "they are consistent with the conscience of this country."

At least partly for symbolic purposes, Carter appointed Andrew Young, a black congressman from Georgia, head of the U.S. mission to the United Nations, with Cabinet rank. He got the longest leash of any of the President's subordinates.

Far more unconventional than his boss, Young became a so-called "point man," raising controversial issues and talking about them. Critics viewed him more as an unguided missile.

On British television, the former civil rights worker called Britain "a little chicken" on racial matters at home and abroad.

He suggested the Cubans "bring a certain stability and order" to Angola. Later, he said Americans should not "get all paranoid about a few Communists, or even a few thousand Communists."

On another occasion, Young was quoted as saying no one trusted the British as mediators in Rhodesia. But he has denied saying that.

Carter showed no sign of irritation with Young, but gave Vice President Walter F. Mondale responsibilities to watch over African affairs, the area Young concentrated on.

Carter's own unorthodox style of public diplomacy prompted some criticism, too.

Former President Gerald R. Ford said Carter's statements on the details of U.S. weapons proposal might make it hard for him to retreat from his initial position.

Every time Carter will change his stance, Ford said, it "gives hard-liners in the Senate an opportunity to say he was outnegotiated."

One of the most prominent of them, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., backed U.S. proposals to limit Soviet long-range missiles and bombers. But, Jackson said: "Frankly, I would not have gone public on this. I suspect the Soviets have never been approached this way, with a public buildup. It is something that should be reviewed by this administration."

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, a high-ranking member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said "it is time to lower our voices and not engage in a war of words."

And former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger called on the administration to avoid "rhetorical battles" with the Russians over strategic arms negotiations.

Human rights and tactics aside, the administration, through Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, presented weapons proposals to the Russians last month that would have hit hardest at Soviet land-base missiles, while having little immediate effect on existing U.S. forces.

Soviet rejection came as no real surprise. The negotiations will resume next month in Geneva between Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

"There is still enough flexibility, I believe, to have hopes we can reach an agreement," Carter told reporters April 15.

Abandoning Kissinger's step-by-step diplomacy, the President has vaulted beyond to form some conclusions about a final settlement — and to disclose them.

For the Israelis: "defensible borders," which they understand to mean territorial adjustments and security measures that could provide time to mass a counter-attack to any Arab invasion.

For the Arab states: return, with only "minor adjustments," of the land they lost to Israel in the Six-Day War of 1967.

For the Palestinians: recognition that their viewpoint is to be represented at Geneva, either directly or through "a surrogate," and that the U.S. government is persuaded that they are deserving of a "homeland."

Carter is in the midst of receiving Middle East leaders. His plan is to send Vance to the area in late June or July. His hope is to reconvene the Geneva conference before the end of next year.

Next: Carter and Congress.

Motorcyclists seeking rebates

WESTERVILLE, Ohio (AP) — The American Motorcyclist Association wants President Carter to clarify the status of the country's 10 million motorcyclists under the administration's proposed energy conservation program.

Carter has outlined a program of tax and rebate incentives favoring fuel efficient vehicles to achieve a 10 per cent reduction in gasoline usage by 1985.

AMA executive director Barrie Best, in a telegram to the President, said motorcycles are among the most economical of all forms of transportation and should be eligible for any rebates.

"We concur with the President that the current crisis demands a united conservation effort among all Americans," the telegram said. "We ask that the motorcyclist's contribution...be fully acknowledged and accepted."

Summer job situation clouded

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — It's a question of supply and demand for college and high school students trying to find summer work this year.

The supply of jobs is only slightly higher than last year, employment officials say, but the demand for work far exceeds the relatively limited number of openings.

"Right now I can tell them it's hopeful," Gary Wiepking, director of student employment at Ohio State University, said of a student's chances of finding a job. "Our job board is not plentiful, but it's picking up."

The Department of Transportation reports a "monumental" number of applications for summer work. The Department of Natural Resources says it gets about eight applications for each job available. Armco Steel Corp. in Middletown calls the number of applications for summer work "overwhelming."

Summer employment in some industry and business will be up this year from 1976.

Two amusement parks, Cedar Point and Geauga Lake, each plan to hire about 6 per cent more summer workers.

Armco will increase by 10 per cent the number of people it plans to employ during the season.

"They'll be hiring temporary help, maybe as many as 250," said Don Easterly, manager of corporate information. "They are absolutely overwhelmed with applicants."

Those who land the steel mill jobs will find "it's hard work," Easterly said, but they are among the most financially rewarding of the summer variety. The base wage is about $6 an hour, he said.

Those who like outdoors work might apply at the Department of Natural Resources' Division of Parks and Recreation.

"We hire approximately 820 people during the summer season," says assistant chief Wes Fry. About 720 of them are already filled.

The department will spend about $3.2 million for extra help this summer when thousands of people pack 64 Ohio park areas. It's the same amount as 1976, said Fry, but mandated increases in pay and benefits will mean the money will employ about 2 per cent fewer people as camp attendants, lifeguards, conservation workers, custodial workers in cabins.

The Department of Transportation operates two summer employment programs at a cost of about $1.9 million.

"We are presently planning on hiring 540 for the Summer Youth Program," said director David L. Weir.

For National 4-H Conference

Local 4-H'er in nation's capital

Fayette County 4-H'er Cindy Baird is one of five Ohio 4-H members at the National 4-H Center in Washington, D.C. this week representing the more than 218,000 Ohio 4-H'ers at the 47th annual National 4-H Conference.

Other Ohio representatives are Scott Campbell, Scio; Ted Bornhorst, Fort Loramie; Melissa Thompson, Ripley; and David Ehrman, Medina.

Cindy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Baird, 4425 Washington-Good Hope Road. She is a senior at Miami Trace High School.

The Ohio delegates join 320 teenage 4-H representatives from the 45 other states, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, the District of Columbia and Canada to concentrate on chapter development for 4-H in Century 111 of our nation's history. The program theme is "Involvement Brings Commitment", and topics include roles and recruitment of teen and adult volunteers; economics, jobs and careers; leisure education, citizenship responsibilities at home and around the world; strengthening family involvement; food and fiber production and use; conservation, environment, mechanical sciences and energy; health and safety; and public relations.

Highlights of the week include a breakfast with Congress, Thursday, April 28, in the Regency Ballroom of the Hyatt Regency Hotel; an address from Robert Bergland, Secretary of Agriculture, Friday at 12 noon; and a welcoming ceremony for King Hussein of Jordan Monday at the White House.

The National 4-H Conference is planned and conducted by representatives of the Extension Service, the U.S. Department of Agriculture; the Cooperative Extension Service in each state; 4-H members; and representatives of the National 4-H Council.

The five youth attending the conference from Ohio are sponsored by the Ohio 4-H Foundation, the Ohio State Grange, the Ohio Council of Retail Merchants and Landmark, Inc. Miss Juanita Miller, assistant state 4-H leader, accompanied the delegation, according to Jack Sommers, Fayette County 4-H extension agent.

At Rotary Club meeting

Chamber's goals outlined

Goals for the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce were outlined at the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Washington C.H. Rotary Club Tuesday in the Country Club.

George A. Malek, executive vice president of the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce, said the goals of the organization fall into four major categories: economic development, member services, community relations and civic improvement.

Economic development will include continuing to work with the Community Improvement Corporation to attract industrial development in the area. He said the Chamber also hopes to promote a "stop-at-home" campaign for Washington C.H. area residents.

Continued distribution of the Chamber's monthly newsletter and a proposed bad check alert system to aid merchants were mentioned by Malek under the member services heading.

Community relations, he said, will include the publication of a new brochure to provide up-to-date information concerning Fayette County and Washington C.H.

Under the civic improvement category, Malek said the Chamber of Commerce will attempt to serve as a clearinghouse to provide both prospective merchants and local persons with information concerning available business sites.

A long-range project, in which Malek hopes the Chamber can be in the forefront, is the establishment of a multi-purpose recreational facility in the Washington C.H. area.

He said such a facility could include an indoor swimming pool, game rooms, an exercise room, a gymnasium and other indoor facilities, plus outdoor recreational areas.

Malek explained the Chamber of Commerce is a voluntary organization in which businesses participate to promote economic and civic interests. The policies and activities of the local Chamber are determined by a 20-member board of directors.

The local Chamber, situated in the Main Street Mall, has three full-time employees, two of whom are paid from funds generated by membership dues and one hired under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) program.

Malek said the Chamber of Commerce here is "now at a crossroads" since the organization has been less active in the past three years.

One problem has been a lack of revenue, Malek said. The Chamber's annual operating budget has increased only 10 per cent from $19,000 in 1966-1967 to $29,000 in 1976-1977. Revenue generated through memberships has increased only 21 per cent from $18,500 in 1966 to $22,500 in 1976.

However, the picture painted by Malek for Rotarians was not bleak. In fact, he sounded an optimistic note by predicting a strong membership drive in May.

The meeting was conducted by club president Dr. George H. Pommert and the program was arranged by John Lachat.

Darrell French of Wilmington was a visiting Rotarian. Student guests were John Milstead of Miami Trace High School and Bob Shasteen of Washington Senior High School.

Teamsters win big wage boost

CINCINNATI (AP) — About 34 drivers and mechanics have won a wage increase of nearly $3 per hour from the Hillsboro Transportation Co., Hillsboro, Ohio, Teamsters Local 100 reported in Cincinnati.

The union said drivers wages went up from $4.11 per hour to $6.50 over two years. Mechanics will get $6.25, the union said.

The agreement ended a 10-week strike.

Dale Cline, federal mediator, said it was the largest raise won in any contract he has been associated with since he began in 1974.

Milicron chief sees upsurge

CINCINNATI (AP) — James A.D. Geier, president of Cincinnati Milicron Inc., believes that an upsurge in machine tools by a wide range of industries may signal an upsurge in the world economy in 1977.

"The upturn may well indicate the beginning of a recovery in the capital goods sector which could lead to greatly improved prospects for the company in 1977," Geier told a stockholders meeting Tuesday.

Ohio University, although not chartered until 1804, was first conceived in 1786 when founders of the Ohio Company met in the Bunch of Grapes Tavern in Boston, Mass., and discussed the future founding of a university in the West which would be like Yale. When the company's plans were completed two townships were set aside along the Hocking River, now the Hocking, for a campus and its support in Athens County.—AP Geier reported that new orders were $142.3 million for the first quarter, a 27 per cent increase over the first quarter of 1976.

Geier said machine tool orders generally reflect the trend of the economy.

He predicted sales "will exceed $500 million this year, with significant improvement in earnings."

The firm reported sales of $448.422 million in 1976 and $9.991 million in earnings.

Geier cited strong demand from automakers for new machine tools. Geier said smaller industries are ordering as well indicating "a renewed confidence in the economy that is very encouraging."

Cincinnati Milicron reported first quarter sales of $116.1 million compared to $106.2 million for the first quarter of last year. Profit was $4.122 million or $1.12 a share compared to $1.540 million or 41 cents last year.

Dirt Band plans Russian concerts

DENVER (AP) — The Dirt Band, which has played before audiences throughout the nation, is taking its blend of rock, bluegrass and country music on the Tbilisi, Yerevan and Riga circuit.

The band will arrive in Moscow on Saturday for a 28-day, 24-concert schedule, the first American rock 'n' roll group to tour the Soviet Union.

"We've been told people over there are very subdued, not laid back, but restricted," said John McEuen, the band's bearded banjo player. "Here, we go out and hit a few bars of 'Cosmic Cowboy' and people know what it is. That won't be true (in Russia)."

The Colorado-based band, formerly known as the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, includes among its hits "Buy For Me the Rain," "Mr. Bojangles," and the album, "Will the Circle Be Unbroken?" Soviet officials have printed programs with lyrics to all the songs to be performed during the two-hour concerts.

McEuen said the lyrics to "The Battle of New Orleans," could be "a little weird" in Russian. Translation of another Dirt Band song, the Cajun classic "Diggy Liggy Li," could be even more difficult, he said.

The tour is sponsored by the State Department's Office of International Arts Affairs.

Other rock groups such as Chicago and The Doobie Brothers were considered for the tour, a State Department spokeswoman said. But The Dirt Band was chosen because it plays "a blend of sounds the Soviets would like to hear. A harder rock group would be very difficult to present in the Soviet Union at this time," she said.

McEuen and three band members left Denver Tuesday for briefings in Washington. With them was singer Jan Garrett of another Colorado group, Liberty, who is making the tour because the Soviets asked for a female vocalist. Another Dirt Band regular, Jackie Clark, will join the group in Washington.

After performances in Moscow, the band will appear in Tbilisi, Yerevan, Riga and Leningrad before returning home May 25.

Between concerts, McEuen said, the band members hope to make a record in Russia, do a television show in Moscow, and present seminars on American pop music at universities and conservatories.

Magical village of Brigadoon vanishes, friendships remain

By KATHI JENKINS

The backdrops have been boxed up and shipped away. The sets have been torn down waiting to be used in the next musical. The magical village of Brigadoon has vanished into the highland mist for another hundred years.

One of the greatest difficulties in preparing for this year's musical was learning to speak and sing with Scottish accents. Now it is hard to speak without the accent. Since the weeks of rehearsals are over, the cast is slowly returning to the roles of American high school students from parts they played in the rendition of Lerner and Lowe production.

The miracle of Brigadoon was presented April 15 and 16 to near-capacity crowds. According to the response of the audiences, it was a tremendous success on the part of all those involved. Chorus members, dancers, and leads each excelled in their own area.

Yes, "Brigadoon" is over, but the friendships made during the long weeks of rehearsal will be forgotten soon. The memories will last forever. The experience of working together toward a common goal will enrich the lives of the cast for many years to come.

Trace hosts music contests

By KATHI JENKINS

Last Saturday, the chorus and band contest for District 16 was held at Miami Trace High School. The vocal director, Richard Glass, was in charge of the musical event.

The judges for the contest were Samuel Shie, Gene Taylor, William Stillings, Fred Bobst, Anthony Violi, Mary Jane McKinley, and Charles Atkinson. The competition was held under the authority of James Thomas, president of the Ohio Music Education Association, and Joseph Chidley, state competition chairman.

Members of the music department worked throughout the day as judges' assistants, office workers, registration attendants, runners, hosts, stage workers, and sight-reading assistants. The concession stands were operated by the band boosters.

This is the second year for the contest at Miami Trace. With much planning and preparation, it ran smoothly again this year.

Anders plans to open second salon in WCH

Kenneth Anders, a Columbus hair stylist and a former resident of Washington C.H., has announced plans for the opening of a second beauty salon in Washington C.H.

The new salon will be named Kenneth's Designgroup-Downtown and the facilities will be located at 217 W. Court St., next to the Convenient Food Mart

Plan photos to show heat leaks

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — Infrared aerial photos of this south-western Ohio city will be produced this fall as a demonstration project intended to determine which buildings are wasting heating fuel.

A specially-equipped plane will conduct a series of flights, with specialists shooting pictures of houses, schools, stores and factories.

Infrared specialist Gary Frank and pilot Ralph Lusk will carry out the missions, flying at an altitude of 1,500 feet, and producing special photographic prints called thermograms.

Heat coming from rooftops, poorly insulated pipes, exposed industrial equipment and other objects appear in the photographs.

After the flights, the pictures are compared with conventional aerial photos of the same locations to help identify individual buildings and potential heat loss problems.

Middletown City Manager Dale Helseo says the project is an excellent opportunity for the city to do something substantial for its 50,000 residents. He points out that the cost is low, $12,500, half paid by the city and half by a grant from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

"I would have preferred to do it earlier, but we didn't get approval until the warm weather came along," Helseo said. "So now we have to wait for cold weather again."

Helseo said that a number of persons in Middletown will be trained to interpret the infrared pictures. Those residents, in turn will help homeowners interpret the infrared readings.

The photography system was developed by Mead Technology Laboratories and has been tested at 25 U.S. cities.

Charles E. Scribner, 18581926, born in Mount Vernon, obtained 400 patents on electrical devices.—AP store. Anders said the new facility will serve the downtown business district.

Anders said Kenneth's Designgroup is presently undergoing an expansion program "to provide full service beauty care to cities in the surrounding area."

Anders presently owns beauty salons in Washington C.H. (433 Gibbs Ave.) and in Mount Sterling.

The new salon on W. Court Street is scheduled for a late May opening and another will open in Circleville soon, Anders said. In addition, Anders is opening his own salon in Columbus under the name of Kenneth's Designgroup-MacArthur Park, which will serve as a styles and educational center and the regional headquarters for the group of area salons.

The salons, according to Anders, are designed to provide full hair and beauty care for men and women and serve as educational headquarters for advanced training in all phases of beauty care for the stylists employed by Kenneth's Designgroup. All stylists are required to participate in weekly seminars and continuing education workshops, seminars and training sessions in which they are instructed in the most advanced methods in permanent waving, coloring and haircutting techniques, Anders said.

Elaine Garringer, of Washington C.H., will serve as manager of the new W. Court Street salon. She is moving from the Gibbs Avenue facility to assume the managerial duties. Moving with her will be Renee Satchel and Debbie Hollar, stylists presently employed at the Gibbs Avenue location. There will space for six stylists in the new facility, Anders reported.

Based on the educational program within the salons and the advanced training of the stylists, Anders said the professionals at Kenneth's Designgroup are considered in the top two per cent of national hair stylists. The stylists for Kenneth's Designgroup-Downtown have all had advanced training in all phases of haircutting and styling and recently returned from the Midwest Hair-dresser's Show in Chicago, Ill.

Peanut supports stir capitol fuss

WASHINGTON (AP) — The compromise legislation the Agriculture Department has worked out for a new peanut price support program will sharply cut the present law's budget, officials say.

Despite that, it apparently would violate President Carter's policy that new farm programs not guarantee growers of a specific crop a profit.

The plan, which some growers still are resisting after other factions of the business have agreed to it, would guarantee a profit of at least 6.6 per cent on a national average to peanut farmers next year.

The Senate Agriculture Committee was expected to vote on it today.

Carter, former head of his family's peanut business, long ago directed that he be kept out of the battles that have been going on behind the scenes for two months.

The peanut program has been the only farm program in recent years to cost the taxpayers substantial sums, about $250 million last year. That has helped make it a favorite target each year of a number of northeastern members of Congress.

The compromise measure projects costs next year of $108 million, dropping in large steps to $15 million by 1981.

The principal alternative offered, still a cutback, would average $208 million a year over four years.

On top of the costs, the support levels have tended to price the peanuts out of the world market and kept the cost to U.S. consumers of such products as peanut butter above what they might be without the supports.

Those conditions might well continue under the USDA proposals, reportedly acceptable now to most growers' representatives, the last hold-outs after processors, the government, and other elements.

One top administration official commented Tuesday as the committee began discussing the measure, "A peanut grower has to be crazy to fight this."

DISPLAY SLATED — Wheat threshing as it was done in the 19th century is just one of more than 100 arts and crafts to be on display at the seventh annual Bob Evans Farm Festival scheduled for October 14, 15 and 16. The farm is located on U.S. 35 near Rio Grande.

Plus several special events

Bob Evans Farm offers nostalgia

RIO GRANDE, Ohio — Tucked away in southeastern Ohio, there's an old-fashioned rural homestead where you can see life at its simplest. The Bob Evans Farm, on U.S. 35 near Rio Grande, offers the perfect blend of scenery, nostalgia and activities for a trip to the country.

Nestled amid southeastern Ohio's rolling hills, the farm offers area residents and travelers alike free attractions and special farm events, plus moderately-priced outdoor activities like canoeing, backpacking and horseback riding.

A farm museum and craft barn house exhibits which show how our rural forefathers lived and worked. In the surrounding fields visitors can see corn, tobacco, small animals, rare Spanish-Barb Mustangs, Quarter Horses, as well as Black Welsh and Charolais cattle.

The brick homestead on the grounds was constructed by Nehemiah Wood in 1825, and has served as a stage coach stop between Chillicothe and Gallipolis, as well as a home for Bob Evans and family. There are also log buildings including the restored workshop where George Lewis Wickline made his famous percussion rifles in the mid-1800s.

The farm ground are open all year, with most activities taking place between May 1 and October 31. During this period, four special events are held "down on the farm."

The most unusual is the zany get-together known as the International Chicken Flying Meet to be held May 21. Professional and amateur chicken flyers will bring their birds to the Rio Grande farm. The chickens will be placed one by one in mailboxes affixed to scaffolds 10 feet off the ground. The door to the mailbox is flipped open, and the birds take off with the longest flight recorded as the winner.

For four consecutive weekends, July 8-10, 15-17, 22-24, and 29-31, the original historical musical drama "Gallia Country" will be staged at the farm's outdoor theatre. Using song, dance and comedy, the play transports the pioneer spirit of the historical area from the time of Daniel Boone through the Gay Nineties. This treat for both young and old is produced by the Gallia Dramatic Arts Society.

Begun in the late 1870s as a reunion for Confederate and Union Civil War veterans, the 107th Annual Bean Dinner will be served August 13. Sponsored by the Rio Grande Memorial Society, the more than 1,000 people who attend annually enjoy beans, coffee and other food while renewing old acquaintances and reminiscing.

The final event of the farm season is the biggest and grandest of all, the Bob Evans Farm Festival. In recent years, the festival has attracted more than 140,000 people in three days. It offers continuous free entertainment, good food and more than 100 arts and crafts for the whole family to enjoy. It will be held October 14, 15 and 16.

More information on the Bob Evans Farm and the special annual events held there is available by writing the Bob Evans Farm Headquarters, Box 330, U.S. 35, Rio Grande, Ohio 45674.

Highest CB radio activity noted in quarter by patrol

COLUMBUS — The Ohio Highway Patrol recorded its highest citizen band radio activity in history during the first quarter of 1977.

"The division received 38,857 calls over CB airwaves during January, February, and March," Col. Adam G. Reiss, Ohio Highway Patrol superintendent, said. "Of these, the largest number of calls, nearly 12,000, were reports of disabled vehicles and calls for help from stranded motorists."

The second most frequently received CB call was to report or request information on road conditions.

"We received six thousand road conditions calls during the quarter," Col. Reiss said. "However, 3,668 of these were in January when Ohio's winter weather was at its worst. The monthly total was decreased to 411 in March due to warmer weather."

CB reports of highway accidents reached 5,374 during the first three months of 1977.

"By receiving an accident call on the CB, patrol officers get the message faster and are able to reduce response time to that accident," the Colonel said. "Recently an officer received a CB call of a personal injury accident, proceeded to the location, discovered the car was stolen, and the driver missing. He searched the area, finding the driver, who, with more time, would have fled the scene."

Of the 1,756 reports of drivers operating a motor vehicle under the influence of alcohol, many were under-derage inexperienced operators driving erratically or drug users, Col. Reiss said.

A recent CB report of a stolen vehicle resulted in the arrest of a 13-year-old who abandoned the car and was apprehended as he fled on foot across a field. Another driving under the influence CB report netted the recovery of a stolen car and the arrest of the driver who was carrying weapons in the vehicle.

"Many medical emergencies have been handled immediately and effectively because the CB radio was used to request help," Col. Reiss said.

He described one case in which a mother called from her car to ask for help because her baby couldn't breathe and was turning blue. She radioed her location and car description and within seconds an officer arrived on the scene, cleared the infant's throat, and restored the breathing function.

In another instance a gentleman became ill and requested help. A life squad was dispatched and the victim transported to the hospital.

"The use of emergency CB channel 9 by motorists in need makes it possible for us to assist them more quickly and with greater success," Col. Reiss said. "We urge all drivers who own CB radios to contact the Highway Patrol in case of emergency."

Lien repeal bill backed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A bill designed to protect homeowners from unscrupulous or shoddily managed contractor operations has been recommended for approval by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The bill repeals the so-called "mechanics' lien" law, under which a homeowner can be forced to pay twice for construction or repairs, if contractors and subcontractors on the work failed to live up to their obligations to each other.

The American Rolling Mills Co., Armo, in Middletown, was founded in 1900 by George M. Verity. Verity pioneered in setting up one of the first laboratories for steel research in 1910, developing the continuous rolling mill process which changed steel-making.—AP Already approved by the House, a favorable Senate floor vote on the measure, by Rep. John D. Thompson Jr., D-15 Cleveland, would send it back to the House for consideration of Senate amendments.

Judiciary Chairman Marigene Valiquette, D-11 Toledo, said most of the amendments were technical, and did not change the main thrust of the legislation.

As the bill left the House, it applied only to one-and two-family residential units.

One of the Senate amendments extended the protections embodied in the bill to owners of condominium units.

Gov. James A. Rhodes vetoed a similar bill last year, but majority Democrats, who now have enough votes to override vetoes, list the legislation as one of their top consumer priorities.

How to deal with a problem drinker

EDITOR'S NOTE — Blanche Johnston, coordinator for the Fayette County Alcoholism program, has provided the Record-Herald with several articles concerning alcoholism which were published by the Worldwide Church of God as a public service in a pamphlet called, "Alcoholism, a Worldwide Curse". This article is concerned with those thousands of people who are related to, or are friends of alcoholics and how they can better help themselves to help the alcoholic.

Chances are better than 50-50 that you know someone who drinks too much. And, if it is a close friend, relative, or mate, you are suffering right along with the problem drinker. It isn't true that people with drinking problems only hurt themselves. Experience shows that at least four other persons are affected by the behavior of a problem drinker. He can't keep his problems contained within himself—it affects his family, friends, fellow workers and employers.

How can you help? Here is a list of Do's and don'ts to effectively deal with a problem drinker:

Do learn about the illness and sources of treatment. Read the literature printed by health agencies. Visit an alcoholic treatment center. Look into programs available in your community. Most people know little or nothing about alcoholism. And, what they think they "know" is probably made up of mostly myths and misconceptions. (In Fayette County, anyone having a problem with alcoholism or who knows of someone with a drinking problem can call 335-8228 between 8:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. for assistance).

Do discuss the situation with someone you trust—a clergyman, social worker, a friend—preferably someone who has experienced alcoholism personally or as a family member.

Do try to remain calm, unemotional and factually honest in speaking with the problem drinker about his behavior.

Do let the problem drinker know that you are reading and learning about alcoholism. Let him know where he can go for help.

Do establish and maintain a healthy atmosphere at home, and try to include the alcoholic member in family life.

Do explain the nature of alcoholism to children involved, and encourage new interests and participate in activities that the alcoholic enjoys—except drinking, or course.

Be patient, live one day at a time. Alcoholism generally takes a long time to develop—it can't be cured overnight. Expect and accept setbacks with perseverance and calmness.

DON'T attempt to punish, threaten, bribe, preach. Don't play the role of martyr or cover-up or make excuses for the alcoholic person. Don't shield him from realistic consequences of his behavior.

Don't take over his responsibilities leaving him with no sense of importance or dignity, and don't hide or dump bottles, or shelter the problem drinker from situations where alcohol is present.

Don't argue with an alcoholic when he is drunk and don't drink along with the problem drinker.

Don't ride with the alcoholic person if he insists on drinking and driving and don't accept guilt for another's behavior.

Reds tee off on Braves again

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Cincinnati Reds are driving Dave Bristol batty.

"Our pitchers are not putting enough into the ball," says the Atlanta Braves' manager. "We've got to start getting people out. We can't go on like this."

Bristol was all torn up after his pitching continued to be torn apart by the Reds, who blasted 14 hits en route to a 9-1 victory Tuesday night.

The Reds' latest assault followed Monday night's outburst at Atlanta Stadium, where the defending World Champions scored 23 runs on 18 hits.

That made a total of 48 runs and 48 hits against Braves pitching in the last three games. The Los Angeles Dodgers scored 16 runs against Atlanta Sunday.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Philadelphia Phillies 5-0, the Chicago Cubs defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 4-1, the Los Angeles Dodgers downed the San Diego Padres 4-1 and the Houston Astros trimmed the San Francisco Giants 4-3 in 13 innings. The game between Montreal and New York was postponed by rain.

Dan Driessen drove in six runs with a pair of homers and left-hander Fred Norman gave up only three hits in six innings for Cincinnati. The two homers by Driessen and one by Johnny Bench gave the Reds seven against Atlanta pitching in two games and provided more than enough power to hand the Braves their fourth straight loss.

Pirates 5, Phillies 0
Bill Robinson's three-run double backed the combined three-hit pitching of John Candelaria and Rich Gossage, leading Pittsburgh over Philadelphia.

The Pirates took the lead in the second inning when Frank Taveras drove in his first two runs of the season with a triple off losing pitcher Larry Christenson.

Cubs 4, Cardinals 1
Manny Trillo and George Mitterwald drove in two runs apiece and Rick Reuschel pitched a six-hitter as Chicago beat St. Louis.

The Cardinals nicked Reuschel for a fourth-inning run on a sacrifice fly by Ted Simmons. But the Cubs, held hitless for three innings by Eric Rasmussen, broke through for three runs in a game-breaking, fourth-inning rally capped by Mitterwald's two-run single.

Dodgers 4, Padres 1

Steve Yeager drove in two runs with a homer and a double and Charlie Hough bailed Don Sutton out of a tough ninth-inning situation.

Unioto win tri-angular meet

Blue Lions fall hard in SCOL meet tune-up

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio — Washington C.H., in their last tune-up before the SCOL meet preliminaries, suffered a big defeat, finishing last in a triangular meet at Unioto.

Court House, completely shut out at the winner's circle, gained seven second places while Unioto and Chillicothe Huntington were battling it out for first place.

Huntington gained nine first place finishes to just six for the Shermans, but Unioto came on strong with eight second places to just one for the Huntsmen to win the meet 65½-60. The Blue Lions scored 33½ points.

Jay Grubb of Huntington was the big winner of the day, taking four individual firsts. Grubb, who seems to be the man to beat in the state pole vaulting championship, vaulted 13 feet even to easily take that event.

Later, he won the 100-yard dash with a time of 10.5, tied for first in the 180-yard low hurdles and won the 220-yard dash with a time of 24.1 seconds.

Bob Fridley got Washington's first points with a fourth place in the long jump with a jump of 18 feet, two and three-quarters inches.

Bill Rannels tied for second in the pole vault behind Grubb with a vault of 10 feet, six inches. Duane Six placed second in the discus behind state meet hopeful Bob Matson from Unioto with a hurl of 127 feet, one inch.

The Lions had to wait until the 120-yard high hurdles before scoring any more points. Fridley scored again, taking third in the event. Barry Leslie and Eddie Forsythe got together in the 100 to chase Grubb to the finish line, taking both a second and a third for the Lions.

Tate Wilson took third in the mile run, finishing just three seconds behind the winner. Bret Wilson was edged by 0.4 seconds in the 440-yard dash for another Lion second place.

Fridley was at it again in the 180-yard low hurdles, grabbing another fourth, edged out at the wire for third. Bruce Cupp finished in a tie for third in the 880-yard run.

Leslie and Forsythe teamed again in the 220, Leslie finishing second and Forsythe tying for third. Jim Donahue turned in his best time ever in the two-mile good enough for second place. Steve Wolfe was third.

In the final race, the Washington mile relay team of Rannels, Forsythe and both Wilsons finished second to Unioto with a time of 3:48.2.

The Lions still have a meet in between the SCOL prelims and the actual meet. They will travel to East Clinton on Friday but will race their SCOL contenders in only one race.

Kansas City's Bird pitches Royals past Rangers, 6-3

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

"Pitching," says Doug Bird, "is a funny thing."

That's funny as in strange, not funny as in ha-ha.

But until Tuesday night, Bird's pitching had been funny as in ha-ha while Rick Wise's mound efforts were downright hilarious.

All that changed abruptly. Bird, who had an earned run average of 4.15, fired six shutout relief innings and was the winner as the Kansas City Royals beat the Texas Rangers 6-3.

If Bird's ERA was rather high, Wise's was absolutely out of sight. It stood at 53.89, based on 1 2-3 innings pitched and 10 earned runs. It is a more respectable 9.60 now after Wise allowed only one run in 8 2-3 innings as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Milwaukee Brewers 3-1.

In other American League games, the Baltimore Orioles cooled off the New York Yankees 6-2, the Minnesota Twins downed the Seattle Mariners 5-3, the Chicago White Sox outlasted the Detroit Tigers 10-7 in 14 innings and the Oakland A's beat the California Angels 7-3. Toronto and Cleveland were rained out.

Bird entered his game in the fourth inning after Ken Henderson slammed a shot off the knee of Kansas City starter Andy Hassler loading the bases. A run scored on Juan Beniquez' grounder but Bird then stopped the Rangers.

Meanwhile, the Royals scored twice in the bottom of the fourth on Darrell Porter's two-run triple, John Mayberry hit a two-run homer in the sixth and Al Cowens tripled home two runs in the eighth.

Red Sox 3, Brewers 1

While Wise was blanking the Brewers on three hits until the ninth, the Red Sox scored in the fourth on a single by Carlton Fisk and a double by Butch Hobson. They made it 3-0 in the fifth on a walk and singles by Jim Rice, George Scott and Fisk.

Orioles 6, Yankees 2
Doug DeCinces' two-run single highlighted a four-run first inning against a wild Ken Holtzman while ex-Yankee Rudy May scattered nine hits in ending New York's six-game winning streak. May is 4-0 against the Yankees since they traded him to the Orioles last June 15.

Twins 5, Mariners 3

Reliever Stan Thomas walked Dan Ford with the bases loaded forcing in the winning run in Minnesota's three-run eighth inning. Mike Cabbage, who singled home the tying run, scored an insurance tally on a grounder by Rich Chiles. The Mariners had taken a 3-2 lead when shortstop Craig Reynolds led off the seventh with his second home run of the season.

White Sox 10, Tigers 7
Richie Zisk and Eric Soderholm each drove in three runs, including one apiece in Chicago's three-run 10th. Each had homered earlier. Meanwhile, ex-Tiger Lerrin Lagrow picked up the victory, holding Detroit to one unearned run over the final six innings.

A's 7, Angels 3
Dick Allen's fourth homer of the season broke a 3-3 tie in the eighth inning and Vida Blue pitched shutout ball after falling behind 3-0 in the first inning, two of the runs coming on Bobby Grich's homer. It was Blue's 11th consecutive triumph over the Angels in Anaheim and his first victory of the season.

Our drivers (at times) fighting a losing battle, are now beginning to make headway on deliveries.

Even though we are not out of the woods yet, we feel the weather is now on a down-hill trend, never the less, we must all do our part to conserve all types of energy.

Reds a country club? A circus?

ATLANTA (AP) — Joe Morgan calls it a country club.
“We,” he says of the world champion Cincinnati Reds, “are the heir apparent to the Boston country club.”
Johnny Bench calls it a circus.
“Throw a tent over us and we are a three-ring circus,” he said. “All we lack is a lady on horseback.”
Losing brings it all out. The cracks in the armor are showing badly.
But why?
In other words, what is wrong with the Reds? Or was that explosion here Monday the thing that turned it around, righted the wrongs? Even if that proves to be the case, what brought about the miserable beginning?

The answer is not an easy one. It is as complex as the many personalities that go into making up the organization. And yes, this is an organizational problem as well as a clubhouse problem.
It is a matter of attitude, an attitude that may have begun growing when it was decided—by a front office which remains strangely absent from the locker room—to trade Tony Perez.
When the deal was made I, for one, rejected thoughts of deriding it mainly because history has always proved the Reds to be right.
This is no longer so.

Tony Perez is missed. Off the record, there are Reds who will say so, if not on the record.
“If he were here things would be different,” said one of the more important players. “Right now we’re afraid to get all over each other. But if he were here, he would get it started.”
Tony Perez, though, is gone and with him went a part of the team that won two world titles. A part, maybe not the heart, was taken away by a front office that through previous successes had lulled itself into a feeling of invincibility.
So one reason the Reds are failing is the Perez trade. That is not the only reason.

So what has happened? Consider one more thing. Gary Nolan and Don Gullett are gone, at least so far. No team can survive the loss of Nolan and Gullett for a season. And the season may be over, at least in spirit, by the time Nolan fights off the effects of mononucleosis and can pitch.

Manager Sparky Anderson says he has studied the disaster of 1971 and has learned from it.

If that is so, he should have learned in 1971 injuries robbed him of Wayne Simpson and Jim Merrit. Goodbye season.

Now it is Nolan and Gullett, the defector, who are gone. That hurts the team too much to understand, really, because there is no pitcher around who is a “stopper,” the man the club knows will end a losing streak.

“We have to get our confidence back,” says Rose, the team captain and one of the few players who is playing up to his potential.

It is a fairly obvious observation. Each defeat depletes the team’s confidence but it is not easy to achieve.

Only success breeds confidence and that was the one major ingredient lacking before Monday night.

The manager has tried everything from clubhouse meetings to using Morgan as the most diminutive No. 4 hitter in the history of baseball. All it produced in Chicago was a 13-hit, one-run attack and a collision between a baserunner and the third base coach.

That is why Bench calls it a three-ring circus and why laughter is the only remedy for the disease that has stricken the champions.

They claim they will turn it around and a lot of people believe them. They only question if time will be sufficient for it to mean anything in 1977.

Frank Robinson's job in jeopardy?

Lions blast Blanchester

The Washington C.H. reserve baseball team left another baseball team in their wake last night, pounding Blanchester 17-1.

The Blue Lions coupled nine hits with 16 walks issued by Wildcat pitching to score 10 runs by the third inning.

John Elrich was the winning pitcher for Washington. Elrich narrowly missed a no-hitter in the game.

He was one out away when a ball was dropped in the outfield for an error and then he gave up two hits for a run.

Rick Burroughs was the loser for Blanchester.

Trace beats Hillsboro, 9-0

The Miami Trace softball team upped their season record to 3-1 with a win over previously unbeaten Hillsboro, 9-0 last night.

The Panthers scored once in the first to score all they needed but added three more in the third and four in the fourth to put the game away.

Debbie Thompson was the winning pitcher for the Panthers, scattering seven hits. Hillsboro did not get a player past second base in the entire contest.

Diana Mussel lost the game for the Indians.

Hitting stars for Trace were Sherry Frazier with a pair of doubles and Carol Frisbie, Val Brown and Lisa Creamer who all had two hits.

Frazier, Brown and Sherry Graf turned in defensive gems in the game.

The Panthers will play again Monday at Washington C.H.

Randle traded to Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mets have obtained infielder Len Randle from Texas, one day before the lifting of his 30-day suspension for punching Rangers Manager Frank Lucchesi.

Mets General Manager Joe McDonald said he had been interested in Randle since February. “We are not condoning what he did, and I am quite certain he would like to have it all behind him,” McDonald said Tuesday. “It was wrong and the player acknowledged that by accepting the suspension and the fine.”

“Lenny is a versatile player who can play all three outfield positions and three infield positions, other than first base.”

A spokesman said Randle, 28, was traded for an undisclosed amount of cash and a player to be named later. A Dallas newspaper reported that the amount of cash was $25,000 and the Mets’ player to be sent to Texas will be Rick Auerbach, currently with the Mets’ Tidewater farm club.

The trade took effect today, the end of Randle’s 30-day suspension.

“I think Randle will be a big help to that club,” said Lucchesi. “As long as I had him, he never loafed. He always gave 110 per cent. He’s versatile, and I think the Mets can use him well.”

“All the reports we have had indicated that Randle is a 100 per cent ball player and a gentleman,” McDonald added.

Records Can Become Platinum

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures

During 1976, the Recording Industry Association of America, which certifies gold recordings, added something new — the certification of platinum records.

To become platinum, a record has to be issued after Jan. 1, 1976. A single has to have sold two million copies, an LP one million copies.

To become gold, a single record has to sell one million copies. LPs issued before Jan. 1, 1975, become gold by having sold $1 million wholesale and LPs issued after that date are certified gold for sale of 500,000 copies.

Sales of equivalent pre-recorded tape are added to LP sales, in the counting. In some cases, records are certified gold, later certified platinum, in other cases they go platinum immediately.

During 1976, the RIAA certified 4 platinum singles, 37 platinum LPs, 55 gold singles and 149 gold LPs. This compares with 1975, when 48 gold singles and 125 gold LPs were announced.

The big singles of the year were "Disco Lady" by Johnnie Taylor; "Kiss and Say Goodbye," the Manhattans; "Play that Funky Music," Wild Cherry, and "Disco Duck," Rick Dees and his Cast of Idiots.

Gold singles of 1976 were: "Love Rollercoaster," Ohio Players; "I Write the Songs," Barry Manilow; "I Love Music," O'Jays; "You Sexy Thing," Hot Chocolate; "Proud Mary," Creedence Clearwater Revival; "Theme from S.W.A.T.," Rhythm Heritage; "Love To Love You Baby," Donna Summer; "Fox on the Run," Sweet; "Singasong" and "Getaway," Earth, Wind & Fire.

Henry and Cato

HENRY AND CATO. By Iris Murdoch. Viking. 375 Pages. $8.95.

To say that Iris Murdoch's new novel deals with a group of human beings wrestling with their various destinies makes it sound much more pompous than it is. In fact, it has Miss Murdoch's familiar verve, the lightly tripping plot that seems at times unabashedly contrived, the cast of odd, erratic characters.

But through what seems at first just an entertaining succession of melodramatic events and random ideas gradually emerge traces of structure, of underlying pattern, of overall design. The novel eventually establishes its own consistency. By its own terms it's even plausible.

The reader, seduced, concludes the author is hinting provocatively at an interpretation, or several, of how life works, no less. And a little reflection brings one to the further conclusion that the characters are really not more eccentric than most people. It's just that they are shown with an unusually sharp light picking out their idiosyncracies.

Henry and Cato are boyhood friends who come into contact again in their early 30s. Each had fled from his family background, Cato into the priesthood and mission work in London, Henry to teach art in a small Midwestern town in the U.S. The death of Henry's brother brings him back to England as the heir to the family estates, and his return coincides with Cato's loss of faith. A young protégé of Cato's, Beautiful Joe, half-angel, half-demon, has already contributed to Cato's spiritual chaos and now acts as a powerful agent for change in Henry's life, too.

The two title characters, with their very different temperaments, seem to be locked into two different modes of existence. Henry skips through life with a kind of fey innocence, a pagan on whom the gods bend an indulgent eye. Cato, his religious consciousness fully awakened, finds life a heavier challenge and he takes heavy punishment for his sins — when he falls from grace he knows it and agonizes over it. Cato is a particularly well drawn character, a man of real dimensions, victim of the conflict between his emotions and his belief.

"Henry and Cato" is another of the novel-experiments Miss Murdoch conducts in her unique research laboratory to show how, according to some basic laws or principles, certain ingredients produce inexorable chains of reactions. These laws may be expressed obscurely, indirectly, in terms of classical mythology, Christian religion or modern psychology, but they're an exact science of some kind. This novel-experiment may be enjoyed at face value — or as the starting point for thought leading to conclusions at a different level about exactly quod erat demonstrandum.

Solar energy system introduced here by Columbus area inventor

By CINDI PEARCE
Record-Herald Staff Writer

It would be hard, if not impossible, to describe Stan Meyer in one word. The Columbus resident is an inventor, engineer, promoter and sole owner of a solar energy heating device.

When Meyer addressed the Washington C.H. Arts and Craft Club and other local citizens in the community room of the Carnegie Public Library Tuesday, he revealed some interesting, yet previously undisclosed facts about energy.

In July 1975, Meyer walked away from a $1 million per year family business because he was driven by the cold reality of the energy dilemma facing the U.S. and felt compelled to search for an answer.

After studying the characteristic economic limitations and environmental trade-offs of conventional energy sources, Meyer turned to the simple and obvious solution: the sun.

With a background in research and production development engineering, Meyer sat down in the basement of his home and began designing an apparatus to generate electricity with heat from the sun. The result was a concentrating lens collector system capable of producing high temperatures necessary to satisfy domestic, commercial industrial and even utility energy demands. Meyer said this is an example of what can be accomplished when faith, hard work and Yankee ingenuity are combined.

Interestingly enough, Meyer acquired patent rights for the solar system in three and one half months, the fastest patent ever granted in the United States.

After Meyer had designed the solar unit on paper, he had to find a homeowner who would be willing to have the apparatus installed. Meyer found Bud Hughes, of Grove City. The former businessman turned inventor began digging a hole in Hughes' yard in February 1976. Meyer likes to point out that he only had 10 cents in his pocket when he started digging. "It would have taken the government $250 million to develop what we did with 10 cents, the faith of the people and the faith of God," he remarked.

The "we" Meyer referred to are the numerous individuals who became interested and involved in the construction of the silo-like structure, including one man from California who read about Meyer's endeavor in a newspaper and then hopped a plane enroute to Ohio. He spent one week helping Meyer and his crew build the solar pak system.

Charles Richardson, of Columbus, who helped in the erection of the solar system, said, "We want you to open your minds and be receptive to the concept of utilizing the sun to generate electricity."

Meyer's 24-foot high solar unit, which is built outdoors, consists of four basic components, only one of which is visual, or above ground. The silo lens assemble (a giant magnifying glass) collects, redirects and focuses radiant energy no matter what the sun's position in the sky, and this mechanism is made with no moving parts which keeps it maintenance free. The silo lens is at the top of the 24 foot structure. The heat sink, which is for high heat, or above steam temperature storage, provides energy for whatever use desired. In the case of Hughes, it is used for generating steam, running a steam engine which powers an alternator or generator for electric power.

The solar insulator provides a transfer medium for radiant energy to pass through to the major storage area and insulates the heat energy as it accumulates, and the heat bin, positioned below ground, houses heat exchangers for below steam temperature heat applications. In Hughes' case, it was used for domestic hot water and total home heating.

Throughout the building of the structure, Meyer kept refining and perfecting it in readiness for mass production. He has utilized materials which can be easily obtained on the marketplace.

Meyer and his co-workers weren't content just to erect a utilitarian type cylindrical structure. With the aid of horticulturists, landscapers, and cement layers, who all volunteered their time, an esthetically pleasing solar pak system, which includes beautiful stone work around the base of the facility, now graces Hughes' yard.

Meyer, who made the rounds to small business establishments enlisting their aid, says the small independent businessmen who helped him out by having faith in him, and through their financial and material contributions, made his invention possible. One company contributed about $40,000.

Calling himself "An American who loves his country", Meyer said he noticed prior to and during his analytical approach to the energy problem, various things, which went undetected by most people, which had tremendous impacts on the energy situation of this country. He noted, "In 1965 the natural pressure in oil fields began to drop, and it became increasingly difficult for oil companies to pull oil out of the ground. At that time, we were five per cent dependent on foreign oil, and now we are 57 per cent dependent on imported oil. It is alarming when one realizes how much of our petro dollars are going out of the country."

Meyer felt it was imperative that he come up with a solution to the energy dilemma since, as he put it concisely, "All aspects of the economy come down to two things: energy and food. Without energy you can't have food." Having, as he put it, a 20 billion to one chance of coming up with the right answer, Meyer did, and he now claims his solar unit could save homeowners between $34,000 and $40,000 in 20 years.

Between 1965 and 1976, Meyer said he became aware there was a tremendous amount of money going out of the country. "A couple of years ago I noticed there were great fluctuations in the stock market three different times." Curious as to what was going on Meyer walked into a stock broker's office and asked for information. He learned that $20 billion was floated in the stock market over a period of a couple of days. The U.S., it turned out, had paid the Arabs $20 billion for oil, and at another time, shelled out $200 billion more. To date, the U.S. has paid $320 billion to the Arabs in support of foreign oil to maintain the economic base of the U.S.

"My purpose is to get an energy source into this country. The Arabs are controlling over 50 per cent of the oil reserves in this country. My most important task is to communicate this to you," Meyer said.

Adding, "I'm very sincere in what I'm saying," Meyer caused the crowd's ears to really perk up when he divulged, "I've been offered $8 million to sit on this patent, and $154 million to take the system outside of the United States and never introduce it."

"The energy source of the sun is free and everyone should have the right to use it as they see fit," he said.

INVENTOR Stan Meyer, who designed a solar energy system, points to a blackboard on which is drawn a graph showing how oil importation has increased over the last decade.

Cellular defect behind alcoholism?

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Addiction to alcohol may result from an abnormal chemical formation triggered by a cellular defect in the brain, two Purdue University scientists report.

What these experiments seem to indicate is that alcoholic's addiction is fueled by the booze he drinks. If this theory holds true, it means that the only hope for a recovered alcoholic to avoid relapse is total abstinence," they said.

The findings contradict a recent study published by the Rand Corp., which indicated that many recovered alcoholics could resume moderate drinking without a relapse.
